

Nevada Historical Society Quarterly

Instructions for authors

Footnotes

The Nevada Historical Society Quarterly uses footnotes (as opposed to endnotes) in its articles. Footnotes can easily be created by using the footnote insertion feature in Microsoft Word. Footnotes should be formatted according to the latest edition of The Chicago Manual of Style.

The Quarterly does not use “ibid.” in reference to an immediately preceding footnote. Instead, to avoid ambiguity, a shortened citation version of the original footnote should be used for all references to a publication after its first mention (where it is written as a full citation). Per The Chicago Manual of Style, “a page reference must be repeated even if it is the same as the last-cited location.” However, “to avoid repetition, the title of a work just cited may be omitted.” Do not include initial articles (“The,” “A,” “An”) in shortened footnotes.

The following examples show in detail how footnotes should be formatted (for simplicity and clarity footnote numbers are not included with these examples):

Book (single author)

First footnote

James W. Hulse, The University of Nevada, Reno: A Centennial Edition (Reno: University of Nevada Press, 1974), 172.

Thomas Wren, A History of the State of Nevada: Its Resources and People (New York and Chicago: The Lewis Publishing Company, 1904), 35.
