MSNC278 Nevada WPA Works Progress Administration

The WPA, the successor agency to the Nevada Emergency Relief Administration, was organized on May 6, 1935. The WPA became one of the most high-profile of the New Deal programs, offering a wide range of federally supported relief jobs for the vast number of unemployed. Gilbert C. Ross was the Nevada Statewide Administrator of the WPA. The state headquarters were located at 303 Center Street in Reno. Many people were employed by the WPA. For example, in December 1936, some 1,600 Nevada men and women worked on more than 75 projects.

The WPA was divided into several divisions. One of these was the Division of Professional and Service Projects, which provided jobs for needy women, writers, lawyers, artists, actors, clerical, and professional people. Harriett Gaddis Spann was the director. She separated her division into ten projects, such as sewing, library, hot lunch, nursery schools, housekeeping aid, the Historical Records Survey, and the Nevada State Writers Project.

The Historical Records Project

The Historical Records Project was inaugurated in Nevada on March 23, 1936, with the goal of locating and cataloging manuscript collections within the state. Initially, the project was federally administered, but after September 1, 1939, it came under the supervision of Jeanne Elizabeth Wier, head of the University of Nevada's Department of History and Executive Secretary of the Nevada Historical Society, as chief consultant. The project comprised inventories of state repositories, including state and county agencies. The Historical Records Project also conducted an extensive inventory of church archives in the state.

The accumulated records of the Nevada Historical Records Project are contained in the Nevada Historical Society's manuscript collection NC 278.

The Nevada State Writers Project

Workers from the Writers Project compiled and wrote books, features, and articles about the State of Nevada until 1941. The Nevada Historical Society, with Jeanne Wier as Executive Secretary, was the first sponsor of the Writers Project. Perhaps the most significant work by the Writers Project was Nevada, A Guide to the Silver State, published in the spring of 1941 by Binford and Mort of Portland, Oregon. This book was one of the WPA's "American Guide Series," in which writers from each state prepared a guidebook about their state. The Guide was reprinted under the title The WPA Guide to 1930s Nevada by the University of Nevada Press, in 1991. The accumulated records of the Nevada State Writers Project are contained in the Nevada Historical Society's manuscript collection NC 278.

Authors' Note

The preceding document was the product of an independent research course in the University of Nevada, Reno's Land Use Planning Policy Program. The authors, Ms. Belaustegui and Ms. Harmon, are graduate students in the program. The goal of the course was to locate and identify documents retaining to the New Deal experience in Nevada. The tasks involved in producing this document were divided in the following manner: Ms. Belaustegui searched and annotated Boxes 1 - 14, 16, 17, 23 - 27, 29, and 32, and provided the raw data on these materials. Ms. Harmon searched and annotated Boxes 15, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 28, 30, 31, 33 - 38 and typed, formatted, and edited the final document.

Both Ms. Belaustegui and Ms. Harmon wish to thank the staff of the Nevada Historical Society for their assistance, and their Professor, Dr. Don Fowler for his indulgence and support.
